The Southern express agency, at Lebanon, Tennessee, was robbed on Thursday night of three thousand dollars. Suspicion fell upon A. C. Jones, agent at that place, and he was arrested on Sunday. He confessed the crime and returned the money. He was committed to jail.

The northward bound freight train on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad ran off the track near Glasgow Junction, yesterday. The accident was caused by a broken rail. Eight cars ran down a twenty-foot embankment, and were wrecked. John Noonan, a brakeman, was crushed to death.

A man named Harvey Larkham, a native of Pennsylvania, and employed on the Toledo, Wabash and Western Railroad, was drowned in the river at Quincy, Illinois, while taking in a sail yesterday. Three other men in the same boat made a narrow escape. The body was recovered.

The employees of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, in Nashville, are much excited in relation to the late order of the road requiring them to sign a pledge not to hold the road responsible for accidents to themselves. A brakeman employed on the line was yesterday required to get off the train after crossing the river.

John S. Mansfield and others were indicted some time ago in the United States Circuit Court for conspiring to defraud the First National Bank of Decatur, Illinois, by misapplying the credits of the bank. The indictment and bench warrant were sent to the United States officers of the District of New York, and Mansfield was arrested and admitted to bail in $5,000 by Judge Blatchford. The names of the other parties are withheld in furtherance of the ends of justice.

We are again favored with one of those delightful delusions about the resignation of Commissioner Pleasonton. It is too good to be true, and good or bad it is not true. It is a proverb that no man ever gets what he ardently wants just at the moment when he wants it. Providence lets the "wire edge" wear off his desires first. And it is the same with nations. Pleasonton is not going to resign.

The French are paying their heavy indemnity debt with a rapidity that indicates more power of recuperation, or more confidence that it exists, than was generally believed. The second thousand millions of francs is well on the way to a discharge, and the nation that can raise, at no extravagant interest, and in the condition of utter prostration in which the effort had to be made, four hundred millions of dollars, has power in it for abundant future prosperity.

The Republican organ announces this morning that, as the Democratic State Printer declines to allow a legal investigation of his affairs, a "warrant will be placed in the hands of the proper officer for the arrest of Mr. Bright upon a charge of felony," which will give that gentleman "an opportunity to vindicate himself in a public manner, by proving himself clear of the charges." This is bringing things to a "focus" certainly, but we do not learn that Mr. Bright is at all scared.

An Irish Club of New York has resolved that the firing of the militia on the mob in that city, on the 12th, "is the foulest blot on the civilization of the nineteenth century." If the Irish were wise they would say just as little of that bloody affair as possible, for nothing can be, nothing is, said of it that is not to their discredit. All that they say themselves, only strengthens the public in the belief that they planned and executed an illegal act, knowing that it was so, and perfectly indifferent whether it was or not, so long as it gratified their enmity at the Orangemen. A French discussion of the matter is reported this morning as having taken place yesterday, in the International Workingmen's Association, in which, after many contrary opinions, the conclusion was reached that "all processions except those which commemorate purely American national events should be suppressed." This falls on the right side, but further over than is necessary either to the peace of the country, or the good taste of naturalized citizens. There can be no reasonable objection to Masonic or Odd Fellows' parades, or the German processions in honor of events or sentiments of no political significance. They are as innocent as the parades of school boys or the evening walks of girls in nunneries. But demonstrations that recall and perpetuate the enmities of their abandoned home, that renew the bitterness of past conflicts, that involve memories and events in which this country and its people have no concern whatever, our naturalized citizens do both the country and themselves harm to maintain. They have no right to bring their conflicts over here, and nobody but the Irish does it. So far as their demonstrations go they ought to be suppressed, that is, those of them significant of faction and ill-feeling at home, or provocative of antagonisms here. As to these the French resolution is right.

A Step Forward.
New York is the worst governed city on earth. Every officer is a thief, and every court venal. Its taxes are enormous, and squandered with a magnificence of extravagance proportioned to the grandeur of the extortion. It is virtually owned by some half dozen men, who plunder it at pleasure, and hold their power purely for plunder. The victims groan and twist, but are helpless. The absolute command of the ballot box, through fraudulent registers and rascally pollings, and the unlimited obedience of the most ignorant and brutal population to be found outside or even in Dahomey, confer the power of enforcing the torture, and the holders spare for nobody's crying. But the other day the daughter of one of them was married, and his associates presented her with about a half million dollars worth of pearls and gold plate, stolen from the tax payers. Not a man of them gave anything of his own, for not a man of them owns anything that he did not steal. In any other city, with any other sort of population in the ascendancy, they would be in the penitentiary so quick that "their heads would swim" before they were shaved. But in New York they are safe; though it must be admitted that they are infamous even there. Every attempt to dislodge them from power, or to legally express their villainies, has failed, though none has failed so far but that the truth is known. The trouble is that nothing can be done with the truth. Shame has an effect on some men. It has none on a Tammany man. Fear of punishment operates on others: It has no effect on Tammany, for there is no court to punish a Tammany man. Hope of fame, the respect of the good, influences many. It is powerless on Tammany, for a Tammany man has no perception of good, and no faith that it exists in man. All ordinary means of correcting or punishing these that Burke would call "predestinated and incorrigible thieves," are as powerless as pills upon the "potato rot." Time and again have efforts been made to get a disclosure of the city's expenses during the past year, but without even the hope of success. In every other city they are published, as a matter of course, and the law requires it in New York. But the law that troubles Tammany goes for nothing. Until within the past few days nobody had the least idea what had become of the $10,000,000 levied last year. It was all gone. There was nothing to show for it, except Tweed's splendid stables, and the presents to his daughter, and similar enlargements among the Tammany crew. The city showed nothing. What had become of it? The papers yelled and swore, and the honest public growled and fussed, and people abroad wondered and talked, about the huge expenditure without result, and wanted to know what the Comptroller had to report about it. Nothing. Mr. Connolly coolly replied that he should make no report, and the citizens should not know what had been done with their money. In point of fact it was none of their business. This was Mr. Connolly's answer down into English. It was a little exasperating but there was no help for it. For months the matter has remained so. Tammany has the plunder and tells the people it is none of their business what has been done with it. But the other day, the New York Times, which has been fighting the "ring" with a vehemence that looked like desperation, obtained, by some means, a copy of the Comptroller's books, or a part of them, enough to show the city's expenses, and the exposure it makes is awful. More than $900,000 have been spent upon the armories of the military companies, mainly for furniture and decorations. More than $500,000 have been paid for carpets for the City Hall, enough to have carpeted one hundred and forty miles of the city at $2 per yard. These are big stealings. Nobody imagines the money went for carpets. Now what? The telegraph tells us, the Tribune announces a "movement among capitalists to resist the further payment of city taxes until they can have an exhibit of the city's finances." This looks promising, but it is not. We have heard of these recalcitrations of plundered taxpayers in New York before, but we never heard that they came to anything. This will not. Half the capitalists of New York are affiliated with the thieves. The other half are afraid of them. And all conciliate them to escape high appraisements. So that Tammany will continue to steal, and impudently defy scrutiny, and New York will still remain the worst misgoverned city on earth.

A Jolly Funeral.
We see periodically in the papers abstracts of the wills of deceased persons who have left more or less of the good thing of life behind them, in the shape of worldly riches; and the mouths of some of us have possibly sometimes watered that we had not a place in the corner of some of said wills. But the most curious will we remember to have read of is one made by an inhabitant of Montegalliard, who died in 1822. His last will and testament was as follows: "It is my will that any one of my relations who shall presume to shed tears at my funeral shall be disinherited. He, on the other hand, who laughs the most heartily, shall be the sole heir. I order that neither the church nor my house shall be hung with black cloth; but that on the day of my burial, the hearse and church shall be decorated with flowers and green boughs. Instead of the tolling of bells, I will have drums, fiddles and fies. All the musicians of Montegalliard and its environs shall attend the funeral. Fifty of them shall open the procession with hunting tunes, waltzes, and minuets."—(Once a Week.)

A Romance of Slavery.
The Norfolk Virginian mentions a romantic incident in the life of a negro man named David Walke, who was sold and taken to New Orleans thirty-two years ago. At the time he was living as man and wife with a woman by the name of Nancy Gibbs. He remained in New Orleans until last year, when he paid a brief visit to this city and returned homeward. A few days ago he packed up bag and baggage and came back to Norfolk to live. One of his first acts on arriving here was to procure a marriage license, and the next evening he and his former wife were legally united, he being 83 and she 74 years of age. Such constancy and inviolable evidence of affection outliving time and absence deserves notice. Both negroes were slaves of the old regime, and are both highly respected.

Had She Ever a Lover.
As to whether Alice Cary ever had a lover, her sister Phoebe, in the last Ladies' Repository, says: "If in her mortal life she ever felt any deeper and holier affection than that for her kindred, except in dreams of poetry, she rolled the stone over the mouth of its dead secret, and sought it with everlasting silence. Among the things now hallowed by her use there was not left a single relic which could reveal such secret. Not a picture, not a written line, not even a withered flower to say that she had loved or been beloved. And so, knowing there was one chamber in her heart kept by her always as a safe and sacred sanctuary, mine is surely not the hand to lift from it now the solemn and eternal curtain of the past."

How to End a Dispute.
A Southern Journal says: "We have heard a most ludicrous description of the termination of a fight between two colored citizens which was interrupted by the sergeant, who carried them before the Mayor. Neither of the belligerents was over fourteen years of age, and his honor after hearing the evidence, thought that each deserved a good whipping. Two whips were ordered, and one being given to each they were told to go on and finish their dispute. They looked very much disconcerted, but presently commenced with much caution; after a while they warmed to their work, and whipped each other with such vigor that the Mayor finally put an end to it."

Now You Know.
The Chicago Republican gives the following decided answer to an inquisitive correspondent: "A correspondent, who announces General Logan as his first choice for the Presidency, desires us to state distinctly and positively whether we are 'for or against Gen. Grant's reelection.' We answer very unambiguously that we are. And as this is our first positive commitment on the subject, we trust our hundred thousand readers will understand exactly where to find us."

The Singer.
BY JOHN G. WHITTIER.
[From the Atlantic.]
Years since (but names to me before),
Two sisters sought at eve my door;
Two song-birds wandering from their nest,
A song of olden times in the West.
Timid and young, the elder had
Even then a smile too sweetly sad;
The crown of pain that all must wear
Too early pressed her midnight hair.
Yet ere the summer eve grew long,
Her modest lips were sweet with song;
A melody that all her words
Of clover-fields and singing birds.
Her dark dilating eyes expressed
The broad horizons of the West;
Her speech dropped prairie flowers; the gold
Of harvest wheat about her rolled.
Fore-doomed to song she seemed to me;
I queried not with doubtful awe,
I knew the trial and the need;
Yet, all the more, I said, God-speed!
What could I other than I did?
Could I a singing bird forbid?
Deny the wind-stirred leaf? Rebuke
The music of the forest brook?
She went with morning from my door,
Her feet still clad in velvet shoes;
Thenceforth I knew her voice of cheer,
The welcome of her partial ear.
Years passed, through all the land her name
A pleasant household word became;
All felt behind the singer stood
A sweet and generous womanhood.
Her life was earnest work, not play;
Her dream was of the farthest way,
And even through her lightest strain
We heard an undertone of pain.
Unseen by her her fair face grew
The good she did she rarely knew,
Unconscious of her life the love
That rained its tears her grave above.
When last I saw her, full of peace,
She waited for her great release;
And that old friend so sage and bland,
Our later Franklin, held her hand.
For all that patriot bosom stirred
Had moved that woman's heart of hers,
And men who felt the world and sun
Found her their most companion.
Our converse, from her suffering bed
To healthful themes of life she led;
The out-door world of bud and bloom
And light and sweetness filled her room.
Yet evermore an undertone
Of loss to come within us wrought,
And all the while we felt the strain
Of the strong will that conquered pain.
God giveth quietness at last!
The common way that all have passed
She went with morning from my door,
To fuller life and love beyond.
Fold the rap-soul in your embrace,
My dear ones! Give the singer place!
To you, to her—I know not where—
I lift the silence of a prayer.
For only thus our own way find,
The gone before, the left behind,
All mortal voices die between;
The unheard reaches the unseen.
Again the blackbirds sing; the streams
Wake laughing from their winter dreams,
And tumbled in the April showers
The tassels of the maple flow.
But not for her has spring renewed
The sweet surprise of the wood,
And bird and flower are lost to her
Who was their best interpreter!
What to shut eyes has God revealed?
What her ears that death has sealed?
What unfaded beauty passing show,
Requites the loss of all we know?
O silent land, to which we move,
Enough if we alone be love;
And mortal need no more or outgrow
What it is waiting to bestow!
O white soul! from that far shore
Float some sweet song of waters o'er,
Our faith confirm, our fears dispel,
With the old voice we loved so well!

Jenny Lind's Last.
I "assisted," the other night, at a rather melancholy entertainment. It was the performance of Otto Goldschmidt's sacred pastoral, "Ruth," the principal soprano part in which was taken by his renowned wife, Jenny Lind. There was a brilliant house, resolute to be pleased. Jenny Lind had a grand reception, the cordiality of which was undoubtedly enhanced by the general desire to mark a sense of indignation at the wanton and cruel cannibals which lately assailed herself and her husband. But it was a heavy and mournful business, even that Jenny Lind, "some of the younger listeners" who perished that heavy, homely matron—that striving singer with worn out voice which struggles so painfully with the high notes and is so hoarse with the low. Can it be that twenty years ago, when she and her husband were filled with rapturous admiration over divine glories of that voice, the artistic perfection of that style?

Greater singers than Jenny Lind there certainly were, but no singer ever bore the same thumps and the same redden. What was the Eccleciastical mania, the Pater noster, the Nilsson mania, when compared with the madness for Jenny Lind? And now what remains? Nothing, it seems to me, except knowledge of music and high artistic purpose. No fancies, no art, could do anything with that wrecked and faded voice. Nothing ever hinted to me of the Jenny Lind of fame. The papers have praised the performance, of course, which is a pity. It is a cruel mistake for a singer to appear in public after her time. Hardly any object or purpose, I think, except to show an error, such as a sacrilege. There is a touching little story somewhere about a grey and withered old woman who stands in melancholy contemplation before the exquisite fervor and glowing colors of a picture of Venus, who wonders whether any one could now be brought to believe that she, even she so faded and unlovely, was once a living model from which the artist drew. Well, the poor old personage had luckily for herself no friend to persuade her that she still looked just as young and handsome as that Venus, and to induce her to propose herself as a model for the artist, one against her better judgment. Had she been a singer she would have found plenty of friends to tell her that time was nothing in her case, and she would probably have believed them.—[Letter to Evening Mail.]

Tennessee Opium.
Dr. J. W. Morton, a gentleman residing in Nashville, has for several years past given considerable attention to the culture of opium in Tennessee, in order to stimulate what he sent abroad for different kinds of seeds, and to encourage the people to grow it. His friends and neighbors, owing to the licentiousness of his last year's planting, the crop of 1870 proved a failure, which was perhaps also due to the inferior quality of the seed. To obviate this difficulty, he obtained seed this year from Calcutta and Smyrna, for which he paid as high as $4 30 in gold per ounce. The crop of the present season has been a success, and the doctor will harvest from fifty to seventy-five pounds of opium per acre; from which he will no doubt realize a handsome profit.
Another gentleman, the Rev. Fountain E. Pitts, who has followed the example set by Dr. Morton, and also extensively engaged in the culture of poppy, reports similar success. After three years' trial, he at last succeeded in securing the best opium poppy seeds from Smyrna, which he planted in good land, and now cultivates in much the same manner as cotton. When the capsules are ready to scald, he makes an incision on one side, and the next evening scrapes off the gum, which has when first gathered, the appearance and consistency of cream. The capsules are then made on the opposite side of the capsule, and the process of gathering repeated the following evening, which exhausts the capsules. A few hours after the opium is gathered it turns a dark purple color, which continues to grow deeper until the characteristic opium color is reached.

Who may Ride in Holland.
Shop-keepers and artisans, however intelligent they may be, dare not ride on horseback here, because it would make a shop-keeper ridiculous in his infringement upon the prerogative of the aristocrats, who alone are accustomed to monopolize such a pleasure. In case of a revolution at the Hague, we know of one lively hair-cutter who would ride booted and spurred. Of course there is a ridiculous side to the envy of the world-bee equestrians, but at bottom, it is an indication of the enormous social fact of a privileged class which bars the way of the people in Europe. But after all, the truly privileged class is the wealthy class, and at the fashionable watering place of Holland, the Newport of the Dutch, we had the opportunity of seeing how the rich enjoy themselves in public. They are very fond of taking tea out of doors.

At the seaside at Cheveningen, and at a club garden in the wood, the noble and the rich of this aristocratic life take tea and music together. At both places the military element is in full force, and the martial young Dutchman takes his tea en famille in public, just as a young American takes his cocktail—with satisfaction. But under what different influences!—the difference between a glittering bar and family circle. It is an extraordinary spectacle, this one of the Dutch family out of doors. Every other man is a soldier, and every other woman is a plump, comfortable, Dutch pattern of housewife.—[Letter to Louisville Courier-Journal.]

Fatal Results of Stealing a Ride.
Mark Auburn, an Englishman, without means or friends, was found stewed away in the hold of the steamship Idaho, south after the left Liverpool on her last voyage. Being taken from his hiding place, he confessed to Capt. Price that he had concealed himself for the purpose of obtaining a passage to America, where he hoped he might be able to obtain a livelihood. The poor fellow was taken during the passage, but the captain determined to return him to England, and accordingly, when the ship arrived at this port, Auburn was locked up in a small room on the vessel, with the intention of keeping him safe until the ship should return.
The ship, arrived on Monday, and was moored at Pier No. 46, North river, and Auburn immediately began to make efforts to escape from his floating prison. He finally succeeded, yesterday morning, in cutting his way out of the room with a small jack-knife, but when out of the room, he found that he had no way of reaching the pier unobserved, except by going hand over hand along the hawser. He attempted this feat, so perilous to a landsman, and had accomplished about half the distance when he lost his hold, was drowned, and falling into the river, was drowned. The body was subsequently recovered, and Coroner Keegan will hold an inquest in the case.—[New York Times.]

A Safe Melon.
In a tract of country in the southwestern part of Africa, distinguished for its dry, but rich soil, says the Journal of Chemistry, a girth perennial melon has been discovered, which is delicious, wholesome, and which is largely consumed by the inhabitants as food. In order that this melon may flourish it is necessary that it should strike its roots through the sand thirty feet to reach the permanent moisture. That it does, and grows in great luxuriance when all else is parched and scorched by heat. But this is not all. If it were simply a huge melon with smooth, and delicate skin, every one would be destroyed by wild beasts before coming to maturity. To prevent this, nature has armed its outer rind with a covering of long sharp, terrible thorns, which so lacerates the mouths and noses of animals that they are glad to leave it alone in all its thumping, kniving, fining, and difficultly in opening the luscious fruits. The native has no necessity for putting fences around their melon patches, for the plant is self-protective.

Comforting to the Mourners.
A country squire in New England was called in by a colored family to make a few remarks at the funeral of their son. The absence of the only clergyman in the place. The weeping friends were seated about the room, when he arose and said: "It's pretty bad; but if I was you I wouldn't take on so. It's all for the best. 'Spose he'd lived and grown up to be a fat, healthy boy, why; he'd never be nothing but a nigger anyhow!"

Sole Agent for
GREENWOOD STOVE CO. STOVES.

By above notice my friends throughout the country will see that I am still Sole Agent for Greenwood Stove Co.'s Stoves—an explanation thereof I found necessary, as the public may be misled by an advertisement in the Journal headed "Cooking Stove, manufactured by Redway & Barton—for sale by all reliable Stove Dealers like Jacob Voetle, 103 East Washington street." My name has been made use of in that advertisement without my knowledge or consent. I have never sold, nor kept for sale, that "Redway & Barton" Stove.
Respectfully,

PROBABILITIES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., 1:30 A. M., July 24, 1871.

It is probable that cloudy and rainy weather with fresh winds, will extend eastward from the city to the Blue Ridge mountains. Easterly winds are probable for the Atlantic coast.

MINOR MENTION.

The Sandwich Club goes on a picnic to Greenwood on Thursday.

The office of the Evening Commercial has been removed to No. 36 East Market street.

Ferdinand Kline, of Madison, Jefferson county, has petitioned to be adjudged a bankrupt.

Indianapolis gas-fitters left for Muncie today, to prepare the new hotel there for the reception of gas.

The Academy of Music ice cream parlors will be converted into a restaurant when the cream season is over.

Yesterday afternoon, a little son of George K. Shure fell from a fence, breaking his right arm between the wrist and elbow.

John Phillips, an alleged counterfeit recently arrested by government detectives, was committed yesterday by Commissioner Knicker.

The Temperance Alliance rooms are to be closed for the present, on account of the health of the General Agent. The headquarters will hereafter be at the City Book Store.

Mr. J. M. Ridenour has purchased the Perry property, fronting on Washington street, between State and South Arsenal avenues, and is now preparing a plat of the same with a view of placing it on the market.

A subscription paper is being circulated to raise $2,500 with which to induce the Water Works Company to extend their mains east on the National road to the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, and north to the Arsenal grounds.

Yesterday two through trains from Terre Haute to Cincinnati, without change in this city, were placed on the Vandalia road. Pullman sleeping coaches are attached to the 12:35 train, which arrives at Cincinnati the same morning, and new day coaches have been prepared expressly for this line.

Alleged Embezzlement.

Messrs. Sawyer & Hall, merchants of this city, have caused the arrest of their book-keeper, David S. Durbin, upon a charge of embezzlement. Durbin was taken before Justice Boggs and gave bail in the penal sum of $2,500 for his appearance for trial in the Criminal Court. It is rumored that he is a defaulter to the sum of $9,000, but this is merely a rumor, therefore unreliable. He has heretofore stood well in community, and is confident of acquittal. Major Gordon will defend him.

A Northern Excursion.

On the 25th of next month, a grand excursion for Saginaw Valley and Saginaw Bay will leave this city via the "Pine Line, Port Wayne, Muncie and Cin.," Ft. W., J. and S., and J. L. and S. R. Railroads. Delegations will join from New Orleans, Memphis, Nashville, Louisville and Cincinnati, and the programme embraces boating, fishing and all the other pleasures incident to a trip of this kind. The fare from this city has been reduced to $12.50, and tickets will be good until the 15th of September, while arrangements for reduced rates have been made with all the hotels.

The Council Meeting.

Messrs. Locke, Reagan, Thalman and Weaver were absent at the meeting of the City Council last evening.

The City Treasurer submitted the following report of receipts and disbursements for the month of May, 1871, July 9, 1871, inclusive, which was ordered printed:

The Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Lafayette Railroad Company thirty days' notice to make their track conform with the grade of South East street, where the same crosses Louisiana street, and the City Civil Engineer directed to set the grade stakes at said point.

Flagmen employed at street crossings by the railroad companies were ordered to remain on duty until half-past eight o'clock.

A motion to open East Market street to the corporation line was referred to the City Commissioners.

The contractor on the Illinois street sewer was directed to proceed at once with his contract, and complete the same within sixty days.

The purchase of an iron safe for the Station House was ordered.

The alley running north and south, through outlet 49 was named Josephine street.

M. M. Ray notified the city authorities that he had commenced suit for damages to his premises, corner of Meridian and Seventh streets, caused by the late rain on account of insufficient drainage, and that he will hold the city responsible for all future damage arising from the same cause.

New System of Medicine. by John Truman, M. D., of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The doctor has originated a system of practice, the positive and negative principle, which elevates man to the high scientific plane of physical brain improvement, and reduces medicine to an exact science, making it certain in its restorative and curative power. The positive treatment consists in the use of brain food and nerve nutrition and other agents which maintain the relation of brain oxidation to general nutrition, and which ignores the use of alcohol and all other agents which interfere with the normal process of phosphoric brain physicalism. All of which is respectfully submitted to the medical fraternity of Indianapolis, and especially to the consideration of the Board of Regents of the University in the Indiana Medical College. The doctor may be consulted at the Pyle House, No. 35 North Meridian street, between the hours of 9 to 12 A. M. and 2 to 5 P. M.

INSURANCE MATTERS.

The German life companies are seeking and obtaining admission into Italy.

The National Insurance Company, of New York, has declared a five per cent. semi-annual dividend.

The Eclipse Insurance Company has declared an annual dividend of ten per cent. to be credited on stock notes.

The Merchants and Manufacturers Insurance Company has declared a semi-annual dividend of seven and one-half per cent.

The Reaper City Insurance Company, of Rockford, Illinois, has retired from the field on account of the ill-health of its Secretary.

A controlling interest in the stock of the Standard Life Company has been purchased by the friends of the Government Security Life with the view of transferring the business to that company.

Any shortcoming in the insurance column of the News is due to the fact that it has been for a few weeks made up by a copy, who is "up in his part." The regular will have finished his rusticiating and resumed his post by next week. The Chicago Chronicle will please take notice.

As an illustration of the material difference that one half per cent. would make in making up the required reserve in life insurance companies, the Commissioner of Wisconsin has compiled a table of the companies doing business in that State, showing the amount of a loan and also four and one-half per cent. reserve, and it shows a difference of $12,480,487 on Jan. 1, 1870.

They are having it nice and cool in Chicago. The Chronicle says life insurance companies can not continue to do a successful business in their policy, without inserting a special clause in their policies exempting deaths from slipping on the ice from the risks insured against. The streets

THE EVENING NEWS.

TUESDAY, JULY 25, 1871.

1 P. M. Barometer, 29.98; Thermometer, 82°

THE CITY.

Persons leaving the city during the summer can have the Evening News mailed regularly to them, by ordering the same at the office. Terms fifty cents per month or one dollar and a quarter for three months.

The Griffith embezzlement case comes up for trial to-morrow in the Criminal Court.

The teachers of Mayflower Sunday School will meet at the house of Mr. Fiske, No. 250 East St., this evening.

Forty-eight dog licenses were issued yesterday. About four hundred, in all, have been issued this season, to date.

A team belonging to Yorgor & Bro. ran away on South Delaware street this forenoon, but was stopped before much damage was done.

The semi-annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias was to convene in this city at three o'clock this afternoon.

The third quarterly meeting of the Board of the Indiana Baptist State Convention is being held this afternoon, at the First Baptist Church.

MARRIAGE LICENSES have been issued to the following parties since noon yesterday: Harvey Gray and Rhodasia Hubbard, James Carter and Mary K. Welch, Daniel Cannon and Alice McManis, Wm. H. Howard and Martha Spence.

HORACE GREENEY is coming West in September, on a lecturing tour. Mr. J. S. Bliss, of Janesville, Wisconsin, is manager of Mr. Greeney's route. Can not we in Indianapolis secure a lecture from Horace, while he is West?

The John M. Phelan case, who was committed to jail last evening, is a noted confederate of the Fort Wayne gang. When arrested at Fort Wayne yesterday, some fifty executed ten dollar bills were found on his person.

The fire alarm just before noon today, was occasioned by the discovery of fire in the dry-kiln of Coburn & Jones, corner of Tennessee and Georgia streets. The engines were promptly on hand, and the fire was extinguished before much damage was done.

A swarm of bees took possession of the working room of Castell's confectionery, corner of Vermont street and Massachusetts avenue, yesterday afternoon, driving out the workmen and helping themselves to sweetness. This morning they invaded the front shop, but after a lively skirmish were captured and lived in a ten-quart can, and removed from the premises.

The convention of the insurance agents of the Northwest is in session at the hall of the House of Representatives this afternoon. Quite a number of delegates from all parts of the northwest are in attendance. It is probable that that no regular organization will be effected today, as being the first meeting some time will be required in discussing the object, etc., of the association.

The Jeff. Road.

A dispatch from New Albany to the Cincinnati Enquirer to-day has the following: The leasing of the Jeffersonville Madison and Indianapolis Railroad by the Pennsylvania Central has fallen through. The latter company have sent for the amount of the bonds and liabilities of the Jeffersonville road as a proposition to come pending for the Pennsylvania Central Company to purchase the entire road, including bridges and stock.

The Peach Crop.

It is estimated that Jackson county alone in this State will produce about twenty thousand bushels of peaches this year, the majority of which are shipped by way of the river to Mr. Thomas of this city, who, for five years past, has attended to their sale for the producers. Other southern counties of the State also report a large yield. It is probable that the crop is fully up to, if not above, the average. The receipts of this market alone would indicate such to be the case.

Probably Fatal Accident.

At about eight o'clock this morning, while W. Schaefer, an employee at the Glass Works, was endeavoring to adjust a belt, he was caught by it and whirled furiously around a shaft two or three times, before he could be rescued. After his release, it was found that one rib of the right side had been broken, and that one end had pierced his right lung, thus allowing the air to escape and fill up the chest. His entire right arm was terribly crushed and mangled, and his hand torn so as to make amputation of one finger necessary. He sustained a severe contusion of the side also. Dr. S. R. Fox, of the Surgical Institute, dressed the wounds as best he could, but the recovery of the unfortunate man is considered extremely doubtful. A son of his witnessed the accident, and stopped the machinery in time to prevent the instant death of his father.

A Fearful Fall.

The press of this city is called upon to chronicle another fearful, perhaps fatal, fall from an upper window. Between four and five o'clock, yesterday afternoon, William T. Kennedy, of the firm of Kennedy & Ryan, painters, while preparing to swing a banner sign for Messrs. Tarkington & Black, of the Boston Store, 12 East Washington street, lost his balance and fell from the third story window to the pavement beneath, a distance of thirty-five or forty feet. In his fall he passed through the awning, which was folded up close to the wall, tearing it to pieces and thereby breaking the force of his descent. Mr. Kennedy struck upon the left side of his head and shoulder, and was rendered insensible from the shock.

A physician was called immediately, when an examination showed that no bones were broken, so far as could be discovered; but that his head and shoulder were badly bruised. Blood flowed from his nose and ear. The unfortunate man was taken to his home, No. 19 Fayette street, where he lay all night in a semi-conscious condition, with the chances against his recovery. This forenoon, however, he was much better than was even hoped for last evening. It is thought now that he will recover, although some undiscovered trouble may assail him and cause death.

Amusements.

MASONIC HALL. The concert of the choir of the Fifth Street Baptist Church, of Louisville, Kentucky, last evening, was well attended, the hall being at least two-thirds full. Quite a percentage of the audience was white, attracted perhaps by curiosity. The idea of a concert given entirely by colored people is quite a novelty in these parts, and if this one had been properly advertised the hall would have been crowded. The choir is made up of twelve vocalists and an organist. As professionals they would not be considered better than average singers, but as amateurs they did exceedingly well. The lady portion of the company, particularly the gentlemen's voices, four in number, were not heavy enough for the soprano and alto, leaving the bass and tenor deficient. Mrs. M. L. Waters and Miss M. C. Baker, soprano, have voices of considerable strength and beauty. With culture they would vie successfully with many of our best amateur singers. The choruses, "Wake, Wake the Song," and "Mountain Home," were well executed. Barring the fact that the programme was somewhat too long, the entertainment was a very agreeable one. The company go to Cleveland, and will return to Louisville on Saturday. It was announced that possibly they would give another concert in this city sometime in September.

METROPOLITAN. The new stars who appeared for the first time last evening, succeeded in making a favorable impression upon the generous audience present. Some parts of their performances were very good. The entertainments offered by the present managers of the Metropolitan are among the best ones of the variety style yet offered in this city.

THE COURTS.

SUPREME. No. 2,357. Stephen Souten vs. Cornelius Longellow. Wayne, C. C. Transcribed, CRIMINAL CIRCUIT. Lorenz Kietzel. Assault with intent to kill J. W. Heibel. Bail reduced to $100 and furnished. The trial of the case was continued until the 1st of September. In September, James Macquay, grand larceny, stood for a new trial argued and taken under advisement.

CITY. John P. Parry, for and driving paid an assessment of $5.00.

John Henry Wagner was found guilty of being a keeper of a house of ill fame, and committed on a bond of $12.50.

A Miss Schilling was given ten days in the station house and fined $10.00, for being an occupant of a house of ill fame.

John Holloway disturbed the peace and stayed a fine of $5.00.

Ellis Harter assaulted Mary Perry and was assessed $10.00.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Remember they are selling men's furnishing goods at Parker's, at such low prices as were never before heard of, and it will be money in your purse to buy anything in that line now, and buy it at 30 West Washington street.

One of the most noticeable features of the "New" Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine is its remarkable simplicity.

Progressive. Ike Davis & Co.'s hat establishment has become the center of attraction to all gents of fashion who desire the latest and most fashionable get up. The energetic proprietors are determined to keep up their well earned reputation by the exercise of their well known taste, experience and liberality.

It is a fact that the Silent Manhattan Sewing Machine runs the easiest and the stillest, and the swiftest, does the greatest range of work, and makes the most durable stitch of any machine in the market.

Section's window is still the center of attraction. Such nobly, hats for $1 are not to be bought at that price anywhere in the city, only at the only one price hat store.

Topaz seal rings at Colclazer's.

At Arcade, No. 6, they are making them get now. "GET WHAT?" Prices, of course, in men and boys' light weight suits. They want the room for fall goods.

Sol Moritz & Co. announce that owing to the season being far advanced they are desirous of disposing of their immense stock of summer goods, and will make up light business suits to order at cost and at short notice. Facts are stubborn things, and this is a fact not to be disputed.

John Jacob Astor was said to be the richest man in the world. McMillan & Brown are not, and that is the reason they are pushing the Insurance business, so hard. If you insure your life, your dwelling, your anything else with them, you will be the means of helping them along.

Hours of experience in the alps is nothing compared to about fifteen minutes leisurely spent in the mammoth jewelry establishment of W. P. Bingham & Co., 50 East Washington street.

A Grand Treat.

Service in pyramid. Every saucer a pyramid, at Academy of Music Ice Cream Parlors. Full brass band in attendance all evening. Also, all flavoring of ice cream and sherbets.

Immense

crowds of ladies thronged the mammoth millinery store of Conaty, 42 South Illinois street, last week. They all went away happy, for they had found the place for cheap bargains in corsets, molair goods, notions, hats, bonnets, flowers, ribbons, etc. Conaty's prices can not be beaten in this part of the country.

We are glad to bring to the notice of the public the Wilson "New" Underfoot Sewing Machine. This machine needs only to be seen and tested that its merits may be known and appreciated.

The cigarist of the period had a big rush on his fresh and soft imported cigars, but he has plenty of them left, along with choice domestic cigars. We refer to John A. McGraw in and under the Bates House.

300 boxes of Seymour peaches, in fine condition, were received this morning at Holman's, No. 6 Bates House Block. From this date throughout the season a like quantity will be received daily.

Jet sets of jewelry reduced from one dollar to fifty cents at the St. Joachim Dollar Store, 22 West Washington street.

David D. Field stands up by his Erie clients manfully, and Colclazer stands up to his representatives of his watches, diamonds and jewelry with equal fortitude. See the styles just received at 14 East Washington street.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Immense Crowds. Were in attendance at the "New" Underfoot Sewing Machine, and the way the "sports" went for their $2.00 shirt was a caution.

Call in and examine.

There is no Need of informing the ladies that J. W. Kenley has and always will have the latest styles of hats, bonnets, flowers, ribbons and hair goods. The cheap millinery store, at North Illinois street, has become the favorite resort of ladies for the latest fashions.

Look Out! Look Out! Baughner. Has received an invoice of fall styles silk hats, and expects a cargo shore by Thursday. Until then, save all your curiosity for 16 East Washington street.

A Pretty Strong Medicine. An old man living a little distance out of Newburyport was troubled with a cold and cough the other day, and came to town to one of the apothecary shops to get some cough medicine. He took a bottle of it home with him, as he supposed, and to himself. As he described the effect it was terrible. He said that as soon as he took the medicine it straightened him out as stiff as a stake, and he lay on the floor for two hours, foaming at the mouth, and sweating all over.

big as three. When he came to himself he took a spoonful of the medicine and threw it into the fire, when it exploded with a great flash, and what remained in the bottle he dashed against the stone wall. He then came into the city, and went to the shop where he bought the remedy and told his story. The attendant listened, and looking round the counter, found the old gentleman's cough mixture, and that a bottle of dry poison was missing. The old man is a little excited, and perhaps he did not swallow it up and foam at the mouth quite as much as he describes, but it is pretty certain that he took a dose of dry poison for his cough. [Boston Times.]

Playing with a Rattlesnake.

One night last week Mr. Haskell, one of the new settlers of Ray Creek, Illinois, a short time after retiring for the night, heard a setting hen making a noise as if disturbed by some wild animal, upon which he got up and went to the coop to see what was the matter. The moon was shining brightly, enabling him to see any objects that were uncovered.

Perceiving nothing that he thought would cause the hen and her young chickens to make such a noise, he ran his hand in the coop and felt under the hen, among the eggs, and hatching chickens, to endeavor to find out what was the matter, when he grasped in his fingers a huge rattlesnake.

The lady, learning the condition of affairs, returned to the house and soon returned with the iron shovel and tongs, with which, weapons the snake was soon dispatched and drawn from the coop. When killed the snake still had a chicken in its mouth, which he had not been able to swallow, while accounts for his not biting the man, which being drawn out of the coop by Mr. Haskell with naked hand. The snake is represented to have been about three feet and a half in length, and an extraordinary large one.
